WINTER WEATHER TO SAVE RUSSIANS

London, Aug. 30, 10:05 p. m.—While the reports from the eastern war theatre, embracing the region from Courland to southeastern Galicia, indicate that the Germans and Austrians are still pressing the Russians hard in combat or tenaciously following them in retreat, military observers here are hoping that the approaching equinoctial season will limit the further forward movement of the Teutons and force them to be content with the fruit of their past successes, as the winter season falls upon them.

Resume Activities.
Both Berlin and Vienna lay emphasis on the statement that Field Marshal von Hindenburg's forces along the Drina river in Courland have renewed their activities, which were brought to a sudden halt recently with the success of the Russians in holding Riga as a menace to Von Hindenburg's rear. In southeastern Russia, in the Brest-Litovsk region, the Austrians and Germans are chiefly concerned in driving Grand Duke Nicholas's army further into the Pripyet marshes, evidently with the purpose of repeating the early score of the Germans in the Mazurian lake region of East Prussia.

With the opening of the autumn months, the military observers are directing attention to the fact that the Russian fall storms are due to begin about October 21. They assert that they are the danger limit to military operations in the eastern field. It is recalled by some of these observers that the autumnal equinox marked the turning point in the Napoleonic campaign. The first warning was a slight snowfall, preceding the equinox, but soon afterward heavy snows fell and with them came disaster to Napoleon.

Desperate fighting continues in the Dardanelles in the vicinity of the spot where the British recently made their landing. The Turkish reports claim the re-capture by the Ottoman forces of allied trenches, with heavy allied casualties. These claims, however, have not yet been conceded by Great Britain.

FULL RETREAT OF AUSTRIAN FORCE

Milan, Aug. 30.—The Austrians are in full retreat at two points. One is in the Val Surgano, where they are blowing up bridges and viaducts and destroying all roads and railways as they retire. The other is in the region of the upper Isone, where the Italian Alpini is wresting an important mountain summit from the Austrian grip.

The latest official reports show that the Italians are now well advanced beyond Pizzo and are attacking the summit of Monte Rombon, 6000 feet high, which overlooks the valley of the Cortina, a tributary of the Isone, and also commands the highway that culminates in Predil pass at a height of 3500 feet and thence descends into the Zebach valley, where the Italians captured positions about a week ago.

The Austrians are in a precarious position at Tarvis, as well as at Tolmino and Gorizia, not to mention the strong series of defenses lost of Val Sugano.

Vienna, Aug. 30, via London, 7:25 p. m.—The following official statement was given out by the Austrian war office tonight:

"Italian theatre of war: Yesterday the enemy maintained an artillery fire of intermittent strength along the fronts in the coastal district. Hostile attacks against several points were repulsed. In the Carinthian and Tyrolean frontier districts the situation is unchanged."

FOREST FIRE DOING DAMAGE NEAR SALT LAKE

Salt Lake, Aug. 31.—Reports by telephone from the city farm in Mountain Dell late last night were that the farm is surrounded with flames on three sides. A strong force is guarding the barns and buildings, which, it is believed, will be saved, but which are admitted to be in grave danger.

Forty men, including a number of deputy sheriffs and a party of special employees of the forest service, left for the scene at 9 o'clock last night.

Reinforced by the mountain winds, the forest fire raging in Mountain Dell and Emigration canyons, thought to be under control Sunday night, has spread over many thousands of acres of timber and brush and is burning more fiercely than before.

Hundreds of men under the direction of city and county officials and aided by the United States forest service rangers, are fighting the ever-extending line of flames, and new crews are being dispatched to their relief as fast as the sheriff and water officials can recruit them.

Driven back upon Killion canyon and away from the homes of the summer colonists, the fire crossed the ridges to the east and the south threatening the city farm. All yesterday a thick cloud of smoke hung over the eastern range for many miles testifying to the extent of the destruction.

No Homes Burned.
As yet no private property nor summer homes have been destroyed, but the damage to the watershed and the grazing ranges is incalculable.

Those fighting the fire declare it is the most destructive and extensive that has raged in the vicinity of Salt Lake in many years. Varying winds have swept the flames like magic over the ridges and across the canyons until both sides of Mountain Dell, Killion and the upper reaches of Emigration canyon are either aflame or in blackened ruin. Climbing Big mountain, the fire ate its way into the East canyon slope yesterday, where great tracts of timber are open to destruction.

SEN. ELIHU ROOT NEW REFORMER

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 30.—From the floor of the constitutional convention today President Elihu Root, condemning the system of "bossism" and "invisible government," which, he said, to his knowledge has dominated New York for forty years, and pleaded that the people be armed with the short ballot that they may establish their own rule. It is all wrong, he declared, that any other rule should exist.

"This domination," Mr. Root declared, in part, "has caused a deep and sullen and long continued resentment among the people at being governed by men not of their choosing. They demand a change. The short ballot plan is a solution, or at least, it may be the first step that will work out a solution."

"When I go back home as I am about to, to go to spend my declining years, I mean to go with the feeling that I can say I have not failed to speak and to act in accordance with the lessons I learned there from the God of my fathers."

Mr. Root was speaking particularly in behalf of the short ballot and departmental reorganization proposal. It has had the support of the so-called "Federal crowd" in the convention but has been opposed by members of the "old guard." Among those who have sided with Mr. Root are George W. Wickersham, Henry L. Stimson, and Frederick Lanner, the Republican state chairman.

Lemuel Ely Quigg, Ray B. Smith and Edgar T. Brackett, who long have fought with the "regulars" in the state, opposed it.

After discussing the proposal specifically, Mr. Root said:

What is Government?
"We talk about the government of the constitution. What is the government of this state? What has it been during the forty years of my acquaintance with it? The government of the constitution? Oh, no, not half the time, or half way. When I asked what did the people find wrong in our state government, my mind goes back to those periodic fits of public rage in which the people arose and tore down the political leader, first of one party and then of the other party."

"I am talking about the system. From the days of Fenton and Conkling and Arthur and Cornwall and Platt, from the days of David B. Hill down to the present time, the government of the state has presented two different lines of activity, one of the constitutional and statutory officers of the state, and the other of the party leaders—they call them party bosses."

"They are called the system—the 'invisible government.' For I don't remember how many years Mr. Conkling was the supreme ruler in this state; the governor did not count, legislatures did not count. And in a great outburst of public rage he was pulled down."

"Then Mr. Platt ruled the state for eight upon twenty years. And the capital was not here; it was at 49 Broadway, with Mr. Platt and his lieutenants."

Resented by People.
"And there is today throughout this state a deep and sullen resentment, at being governed thus by men not of the people's choosing."

"The party leader is selected by no one, accountable to no one. Bound to no oath of officers, removable by no one."

"I don't criticize the men of the invisible government. How can I? I have known them all, and among them have been some of my dearest friends. But it is all wrong that a government not authorized by the people should be continued superior to the government that is authorized by the people."

"All parties are alike. The system extends through all."

"What the unerring instinct of the democracy of our state has seen in this government is that a different standard of morality is applied to the conduct of affairs of state than that which is applied in private affairs.

Susceptible to Change.
"I deny that we cannot change it. I assert that this perversion of democracy can be changed as truly as the atmosphere which made the credit scandal possible in the congress of the United States was blown away by the force of public opinion."

"We can take this one step toward not robbing the people of their part in government, but toward robbing an irresponsible autocracy of its indefensible and unjust and undemocratic control of government, and restoring it to the people to be exercised by the men of their choice and their control."

The short ballot and general civil state department reorganization proposal, which Mr. Root advocated tonight, would strike from the elective list the offices of secretary of state, state treasurer, engineer and surveyor. Department heads, appointed by the governor with the advice and consent of the senate, would assume the duties now borne by these offices.

Cut Down Bureaus.
All the state departments and bureaus, of which there are now 168, would be grouped under fifteen heads, which would be made constitutional offices. No new independent departments could be created by the legislature.

Only two department heads, the attorney general and the comptroller, would be elective. The secretary of state would be given supervision over elections.

The attorney general and comptroller, as well as all appointive heads of departments, would be subjected to impeachment in the same manner as the governor.

The proposal was advanced to the order of final passage late tonight.

The most important amendment adopted tonight gives the governor the right to name the secretary of state, state treasurer, tax commissioner, the secretary of charities and commissioners of accounts, health and agriculture without the consent of the senate. Nominations of all other appointive officers will require the confirmation of the senate.

UPRISING OF THE BORDER MEXICANS

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 30.—With the arrest here of Twenty-six Mexicans, twenty-three of whom were detained late today Chief of Police Lancaster and federal authorities tonight announced that a plan to incite the Mexican population of San Antonio to deeds of violence had been frustrated.

The prisoners, according to Chief Lancaster, are followers of the so-called plan of San Diego, an extravagant manifesto promulgated by a party of Mexican agitators, which proclaims the "republic of Texas," to be governed by Mexicans. Recent uprisings in the lower Rio Grande valley caused the program for the establishment of the new government to go amiss, and at the same time federal officials were put on their guard.

Three of the leaders were arrested Sunday night while addressing a crowd of 1,000 Mexicans on the market plaza. The addresses were of an inflammatory nature and calculated to arouse the poorer classes of Mexicans to deeds of violence.

Since the disturbances in the Brownsville territory, special agents of the United States department of justice and police officials have been keeping a close watch to prevent a possible uprising in San Antonio.

Three speakers, it was learned, had gathered about 1,000 Mexicans around them and in passionate outbursts of oratory, pictured to them a tale of persecution of their fellows. Chief Lancaster, Police Inspector Mussey and Captain Welch heard their remarks.

"One speaker," Chief Lancaster said, "after abusing the president of the United States, the government of this country and the white race generally, openly declared: 'It is no harm to kill a gringo and an all-American (meaning Americans and Germans).'"

It was at this point that the police charged the crowd and arrested the leaders, but not without a fight. As the officers were withdrawing one of the Mexicans shouted: "Now is the

Electric Flat Iron

Since the Cheap John electric flatirons have been placed on the Ogden market, the Standard started negotiations with the manufacturers of the "American Beauty" flatiron, the highest grade and best flatiron in the world, but the answer came as follows:

"The American Beauty" cannot be sold at reduced price—$5.00 the price. But we are sending you a gross of our next grade, the "AMERICAN ELECTRIC IRON," not as good or as beautiful as the "American Beauty," but we guarantee it will not burn out during the natural life of the buyer, and further, this iron uses less electricity than any flatiron made for the service given."

The irons will reach Ogden in about three weeks and every Ogden citizen, whether a subscriber of the Standard or not, shall have time to rise. Let us kill the gringos."

The arrival of the police for the time being quitted the uprising.

Twenty-three Mexicans will be placed in the custody of federal officials.
